BENJAMIN GALÈS

Junior Developer
42 School - Nice

Madam, Sir,

Currently undergoing training at School 42, I am seeking a new professional opportunity in the software development field, one that will allow me to keep progressing, take on new challenges, and continue learning through concrete experience.

After completing the "common core" at École 42, I joined Ansys, where I worked for a total of one year: a six-month internship followed by a six-month fixed-term contract as a full-stack developer. During that time, I strengthened both my technical skills and my understanding of project organization within a large, structured company. I contributed to developing internal tools and improving the user experience, while deepening my mastery of technologies such as React, TypeScript, and Python.

This experience confirmed my passion for building reliable, user-focused software and my interest in collaborative development environments.

My background is somewhat atypical, having first earned a literary baccalaureate, but it gave me a solid foundation in analysis, communication, and adaptability. Transitioning from literature to technology taught me how to approach problems creatively and to learn fast in unfamiliar contexts, qualities that have served me well as a developer. Today, I am looking for a position where I can apply what I've learned while continuing to grow both technically and as part of a team.

I am especially motivated by environments that value curiosity, initiative, and the opportunity to take ownership of meaningful projects.

I would be glad to discuss how my profile and experience could contribute to your team's goals. Please accept the expression of my distinguished regards.
